

TechPersona STUDIO

Brand guide

The look, the colors, the vibe, and what to avoid.
Warm editorial print, one confident accent, hard edges, real voice.

A well-set broadsheet, not a SaaS dashboard.

Cream paper, near-black ink, one terracotta accent. Hard edges and blocky shadows that read as printed and deliberate. Confident and human, never slick or corporate.

Honest, not hypey

Plain language an owner actually uses.
No agency jargon, no buzzwords, no
inflated claims.

Confident, not loud

One accent color, used sparingly, carries all the energy. Restraint reads
as competence.

Crafted, not templated

Sharp 2px borders and hard offset shadows. It looks made, not generated.

Human, not corporate

Warm cream over cold white. A real person named Thao, not a faceless studio.

Cream, ink, and one terracotta.

Roughly 70% cream, 25% ink, 5% terracotta. The accent earns its punch by being rare. Red is a spice, never a base.

PAPER Paper #F2ECDF Default background. Warm cream.	PAPER-DEEP Paper deep #E9E0CD Alternate sections, for rhythm between bands.
INK Ink #1A1813 Text, borders, dark section backgrounds.	INK-SOFT Ink soft #534D40 Body copy on cream, secondary text.
ACCENT Accent · terracotta #CE3A18 The one accent. CTAs, emphasis, highlights.	ACCENT-DEEP Accent deep #A82C0F Hover/pressed, calmer fills on dark.
70% cream	25% ink 5%

Fraunces leads. Hanken reads.

A serif display with character, paired with a clean grotesque body. Fraunces sets the voice and the moments; Hanken does the reading.

FRAUNCES · DISPLAY SERIF · HEADINGS, LOGO, NUMBERS

Stop losing leads you already paid for.

AaBbGg 0123 & — “quote” italic is a signature move

HANKEN GROTESK · BODY · COPY, BUTTONS, LABELS

Every form, call, and message gets seen, logged, and answered fast, instead of getting buried across five different inboxes. Plain language an owner uses.

Regular 400 Medium 500 Semibold 600 Bold 700

RULES

Sentence case for headings, never Title Case. Uppercase only for small tracked labels. Headings set tight (`line-height:1.02`). Use italic Fraunces for a single emphasized phrase, not whole sentences.

Hard edges. Blocky shadows. Paper grain.

Structure stays sharp; people stay round. Borders are 2px ink, shadows are solid offset blocks (never blur), and a faint grain overlay makes the cream feel like paper.

01

Catch every inquiry

Sharp corners, 2px ink border, hard offset shadow.

Show me what to fix →

See it work first →

● auto-reply active

THE CONTRAST RULE

Rounded corners appear only where they're human: the phone mockup, chat bubbles, status dots, pills. Everything structural (sections, cards, buttons) stays at 90°. That tension is intentional, not an accident.

The fastest ways to break the brand.

- ✗ Purple/blue gradients, glassmorphism, or frosted blur. The generic SaaS look this brand rejects.
- ✗ Pure white (`#FFF`) backgrounds. Always warm cream; white reads cold.
- ✗ Soft drop shadows or glows. Shadows are solid offset blocks, full stop.
- ✗ Rounded corners on structural elements. Rounding is for human/device elements only.
- ✗ A second accent color. Terracotta is the only one; more dilutes it.
- ✗ Large fields of red. The accent stays under ~5% of any view.
- ✗ Generic fonts (Inter, Roboto, Arial). Fraunces + Hanken only.
- ✗ Corporate jargon: "leverage," "seamless," "robust," "innovative."

• Do

Warm cream backgrounds
One terracotta accent, used rarely
Sharp borders + hard offset shadows
Sentence-case headings
Plain, specific owner-language
Alternate light/dark bands for rhythm

✗ Don't

Cold white or gray backgrounds
Multiple accents or gradients
Soft blurry shadows or glows
Title Case or ALL-CAPS headlines
Buzzwords and vague superlatives
Flat same-color sections that blend